Reading Olympics Ends on Friday!

This is your last week to turn in "Minutes Read" tickets and to compete in the Olympic Events. Ask your teacher if there's a type of book you still need to find. There's still 4 days to read, Team. Let's finish strong!

As the weather gets nicer and over Spring Break, think of some places you could take your kids. Traveling/seeing new things builds background knowledge your child needs for reading comprehension. The more kids experience for themselves, the more they can relate to what is going on in a story or what kind of person, place, or thing they may be reading facts about. So, get out of your house, your neighborhood, or your town and show your child some new things! (Most of us don't need encouragement to do that after winter—lol, but this spring, have an eye toward what you can TEACH and SHOW your child while you're out and about! Coming next week: cool stuff to see right here in Idaho. Often, it will only cost you a tank of gas and a picnic lunch!
